When you are buying a new smartphone, the first thing you need to do is decide what you need it for. A few years ago, a smartphone was an essential part of daily life for most people, but these days, smartphones are increasingly being used for many things that they weren't necessarily designed to do. You don't need to have a phone that has the ability to play music, for example, but having a tablet that can do that as well as play games, for example, is a much better option. The best option is to look at all of the features the smartphone offers, and base your decision on what you intend to use it for. Let's look at some of the best options available. First and foremost, most smartphones have cameras built-in. If you intend to use the smartphone for taking photos and videos, or maybe you just want to take the occasional selfie, then having a good camera is important. All smartphones have built-in cameras, but when you are looking to buy a new smartphone, you may want to look for one with a good
