Search This Blog Monday, February 16, 2009 Cathy Helvenston, owner of the Mountain Pageant, has the scoop on what's going on and what's new in the park! Here is some new information to the ice hockey scene. The Ice Rink at the Mountain Pageant is being used as an ice rink by the Carolina Ice School. They have a master's and undergraduate level hockey and figure skating program that uses the ice to teach their students and continue to train them in the winter. They have classes once or twice a week, for beginners to advanced levels. They are offering a free 8 week course to anyone who will show up and have no experience. If you are interested in taking this free class, call them at 541.501.4553 and find out what time classes are offered on Mondays or Thursdays. This is an awesome opportunity to learn how to ice skate or play hockey and it is free. Just take a couple of weeks out of your winter schedule to learn or if you have a little bit of experience go for it! The Mountain Pageant has recently added two new vendors to their list. Check out the new menu items coming up soon: Pizza Hut and Taco Bell. Both are located in the summer camp area. Description: Rating: Rating:This is a proposal to analyze the physiological and pathophysiological consequences of impaired glucose utilization by neurons. We have found that glucose toxicity occurs in vitro, when neurons are incubated in high-glucose media. The toxicity is manifested as a decrease in activity, accompanied by an accumulation of lactate and the appearance of elevated levels of diacylglycerol, a key mediator of insulin resistance. We propose to study the cellular mechanisms by which this occurs. We will determine if the in vitro toxicity is correlated with impaired glucose utilization in vivo and if elevated lactate levels are present in diabetic rats. Since low concentrations of the neurotoxic metabolite quinolinic acid are present in neurons in this condition we will analyze whether quinolinic acid is involved in the mechanism of impaired glucose utilization. We will also determine if expression of the gene for manganese-dependent superoxide dismutase is altered and if a potential neurotoxic metabolite of dopamine, dopamine-3-O-sulfate is present. In addition we will determine the toxicity of lithium, a potent agent of improved glucose utilization in cultured neurons. In addition we will determine the toxicity of lithium, a potent agent of improved glucose utilization in cultured neurons. We will also determine the toxicity of ethanol and lead, which are known to impair glucose utilization in vitro. The information derived from these studies is expected to lead to a better understanding of the impairment of glucose utilization by neurons in diabetes mellitus.Q: Excel Pivot Table -> Remove top item When I use "Pivot Table" function in Excel I can see the top item of the Pivot Table. I have used this with different variables, but it is always the first item. I want to move this to the bottom. How can I do this? A: Instead of creating a PivotTable, you could simply create a regular pivot. With some sense of which values are the pivot-selected values, you can then manually move them to the bottom of the PivotTable.
